Common Room are experts in co-production with young people who have lived experience of mental health inpatient care.

Life on the ward can often feel like living in a clinical 'bubble'. But we need to be able to feel hopeful about what our future could look like outside hospital.

I feel like I haven't gone through everything for no reason.

It has meant a lot to be able to try and improve care and quality in the system, it allows us to have a voice when normally we don't get listened to.
